

Divers Fishing For S-4 Sunk In Experiment

Submarine Base, New London, Conn., Dec. 18 (AP).—The submarine S-4, once the undersea tomb of 40 men, today was the prize for which Navy divers fished with new lifting hooks in the gale-swept waters of Long Island Sound.

Sunk deliberately without a crew yesterday on the first anniversary of the crash with the Destroyer Paulding in which the submarine sank off Provincetown, Mass., the submersible rested in mud at a depth of 55 feet as divers worked to attach massive chains to four lifting hooks or "padeyes" designed to hitch the submarine to huge pontoons for the raising operation.

The sinking of the craft took place in Great Salt Pond, a landlocked bay off Block Island, R. I., about thirty miles from New London, where a northwest storm stirred the water into ugly whitecaps that broke against the sides of the submarine rescue ship Falcon from which the test of the lifting hooks was being conducted.

The operation, the first of a series of experiments with newly developed rescue and salvage apparatus, had for its primary object the determination of the accessibility of the lifting hooks to divers working under conditions such as those that might be encountered in cases of disasters like that of the S-4 and the S-51.

The latter ship was rammed and sunk three years ago by the steamer City of Rome off Block Island, a few miles from where the newest salvage experiment was being worked out. Tunneling under the hull, an operation of days, was necessary before chains were drawn beneath the shells to pontoons that lifted the two submarines.

The hooks in tests at Washington were shown to have lifting capacity of 160 tons, or at least 60 tons more than the weight of the S-4 when the Navy's salvage experts aboard the Falcon flooded her ballast tanks and engine room, sinking her in seventeen minutes. Through air valves and lines the Falcon retained an emergency hold while the submarine was down.

Divers worked throughout the day and into the evening making fast to the "padeyes" the chains to fasten the water-loaded pontoons to the side of the submarine and to pull the vessel up as the water was pumped from them.

The Falcon throughout last night was at anchor over the hull "with everything in readiness for resumption of the experiment at dawn today. One hour and a half was required for the connecting of one chain and considerable preliminary work was necessary before the remaining three were hooked up.

Despite the intense activity aboard the Falcon those on board and the crew of the Cheviot, a submarine tender which stood by with newspapermen, did not forget the chief cause of their experimental work. At exactly 3:47 p. m. the time at which the S-4 and the Paulding crashed, the whistle of the Falcon halted all work on the two tenders while crews stood in silent prayer in tribute to those who died in the hull which was under them.

26 RESIDENTS CHARGED WITH LIQUOR VIOLATIONS.

Leadville, Col., Dec. 18 (AP).—Twenty-six residents of this lofty mining town, perched among the bleak peaks of the Colorado Rockies, were under arrest today on federal grand jury indictments charging conspiracy in the greatest liquor clean-up the city has known in recent years.

Mayor R. J. McDonald, nine other city officials, and 16 citizens, many of whom are prominent here, were served yesterday with bench warrants by United States Marshal Callen and his deputies who arrived in town with the thermometer registering 15 degrees below zero.

It was believed the marshal had not yet completed his work and that others would be indicted within a few days. The indictments were returned by a grand jury which met at Pueblo earlier this month, and before 15 Leadville citizens, including most of the city's officials, were called to testify.

Those arrested were released on temporary bonds pending arraignment later this week. Their trials were expected to begin January 7 at Pueblo.

The wholesale indictments followed an investigation by federal prohibition authorities. It was charged that many bars were still being used for the same purposes they were used for in the rip-roaring gold mining boom days of the eighties.

Oldest Resident Dies at 99.

Orlando, Fla., Dec. 18 (AP).—Mrs. Sarah B. Dickerson, oldest resident of this city, died in her ninety-ninth year yesterday. She was born in Watertown, N. Y., and came here from Los Angeles when she was eighty-one years old. She never became seriously ill until the brief spell just before her death. Funeral plans have not been announced.

No Arrests Here.

Monday was a quiet day in police circles and it was not found necessary to make any arrests. For that reason there were no cases brought to the attention of Judge Van Buren in police court this morning.

Rebury Body In Her Beloved South

Body of Belle Boyd, Confederacy's Most Noted Woman Spy, Will Be Reburied in the Soil of Her Native Virginia.

Kilbourne, Wis., Dec. 18 (AP).—Belle Boyd, who in life dared everything for the South and then was buried in the alien North, is going home. The body of the Confederacy's most noted woman spy is to be taken from Tiny Spring Grove cemetery here and reburied in the soil of her native Virginia.

The courageous foe of the Union, who hoodwinked Federal officers and defied their superiors even to cabinet officers, has been honored each Memorial Day by the Kilbourne G. A. R. Federal soldiers have placed flowers on the famous spy's grave each year. She died here June 11, 1900, while on a tour with a theatrical company.

Now arrangements are being made to exhume the body and send it to Virginia, where a more fitting monument than the one which stands above her grave here will be erected.

At 17 Belle Boyd defied Union troops and shot a United States soldier in her home at Martinsburg, Va. Not yet 18, she braved the cross fire of Federal and Confederate troops to convey to Stonewall Jackson information which enabled him to defeat General Banks in the Shenandoah Valley.

Finally, after doing daring work for the confederacy, she was captured by the "Feds." She was held in prison at Washington and while there defied Secretary of War Stanton. Finally she was released. Then re-arrested.

A court martial sentenced her to prison for the duration of the war but her father got the sentence commuted to banishment to the south. She defied General Benjamin F. Butler at Fort Monroe when he tried to question her after certain letters had been found in her possession. She escaped to Richmond.

Captured while on a blockade runner enroute to England to enlist aid there, Belle fell in love with her guard, Lieutenant Sam Wythe Hardinge. He accompanied her to New York and Boston. Her fate was in doubt but finally she was conducted over the Canadian border and sailed for England.

Hardinge joined her there and they were married. When he returned to this country he was imprisoned as a deserter. Finally freed, he rejoined her in England. He died in 1869.

Belle remarried, then obtained a divorce. She married a third time. For some years she went about the country lecturing. Then she joined a theatrical company and died on tour to be buried here far from her beloved south.

Canfield's First Choice Is Albany

Will Return Thursday For Further Investigation Before Going to Washington—Officers Will Be Maintained Here.

The Knickerbocker Press in today's issues publishes the following: A careful inspection of the Albany federal building for available space for establishing headquarters in Albany was made Monday by Palmer Canfield, newly appointed prohibition administrator over the recently created district.

Mr. Canfield, assisted by two Washington officials, conferred for some time with Captain Lewis H. Gibbs, custodian of the federal building, but deferred final decision until he had consulted Commissioner Doran at Washington. The federal building at Troy was also inspected by the three as a possible choice should sufficient space not be available in Albany.

"Albany is my first choice as being the most centrally located city in the new district. It is also a larger city with easier transportation facilities in all directions," Mr. Canfield said last night.

The new prohibition administrator said he would return to Albany probably Thursday for further investigation, after which he will go to Washington to consult the commissioner and with Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman.

A whole floor will be required in a rent free federal building for the new headquarters. Mr. Canfield said last night. Mr. Canfield said he will be assisted in his duties by two deputy administrators, a legal advisor and his assistants and a large office force which will include a number of disbursing agents. No appointments will be made until after the conference at Washington at the end of this week.

Prohibition officers under direction of the central force will be maintained at Binghamton, Syracuse, Utica, Malone and Kingston. Each of these will be in charge of a chief to be appointed by the administrator.

Smallpox Spreads Up the Yukon.

Cordova, Alaska, Dec. 18 (AP).—Smallpox, which has been raging in the town of Kotzebue and Norton Sound, is reported in radio messages from Anvik to be spreading up the Yukon into the interior. The messages said half the supply of vaccine in Anvik, on the Yukon, was being sent to Holy Cross, about 59 miles down the drive, by dog team. No shortage of vaccine was reported.

Verdicts in Supreme Court

O. R. Hiltbrand Awarded $1000—Anna Aiello Awarded $700 in Un-Defended Action—$100 for Charles Cozza—Negligence Action on Trial.

Judge Pierce R. Russell, who is presiding at the December term of the supreme court, on Monday afternoon adjourned the sentencing of several defendants who had entered pleas of guilty to various crimes until Tuesday afternoon in order that he might make a study of the past history of the defendants before imposing sentence. On being arraigned several defendants entered pleas of guilty to the indictments and sentence was to be pronounced Monday afternoon. In adjourning the cases until Tuesday Judge Russell informed them that he had never passed sentence on any man until he was familiar with the circumstances surrounding the crime as well as the past history of the defendant. That course was only fair to the defendants as well as to the public.

Hiltbrand Wins
A sealed verdict was handed up by the jury in the action in negligence brought by Major O. Ray Hiltbrand of Port Ewen against the H. C. Rouillon, Inc., trucking company of New York. Mr. Hiltbrand sued to recover damages to his Cadillac car which was damaged in collision at Marlborough with one of defendant's trucks. A verdict in the sum of $100 for plaintiff was returned.

Action Unsuccessful
An un-defended action brought by Frank Aiello, guardian ad litem, etc., for Anna Aiello of Glisco against Luigi Verdill and Nicholas Verdill was tried before a jury. Frank W. Brooks appeared for plaintiff. Anna, 8 years old, was struck by a car driven by Nicholas and owned by Luigi Verdill on March 16, 1928 and sustained a broken leg and other injuries. Her sister, Emma, was with her at the time and it was testified that the car was showing but one light at the time of the accident. The car was driven over to the left of the street where the girl was crossing the street and she was struck. Her sister testified John Porter picked the child up and took her home and Dr. Krom of Saugerties was called. Plaintiff sued for $700 and a verdict for that amount was returned by the jury after a few minutes deliberation. The action was never defended and no answer was put in.

Second Inquest.
A second inquest was taken by Frank W. Brooks in an action brought by Charles Cozza against Luigi Galetano. Plaintiff claimed $100 damages for a stove which he testified was wrecked by reason of the negligence of defendant. About September 15 of this year Charles bought a new stove from Louis Kaplan and paid $100 for it. He took it home and secured the services of Luigi to install a hot water boiler and erect the stove. Luigi is alleged to be a plumber. He erected the stove and connected the boiler. Mrs. Cozza started fire and commenced to cook her dinner. There was an explosion and the stove was damaged. Harry Matthews, a plumber, was called in. He examined the stove and found that in connecting the hot water boiler up Luigi had connected it backwards. An air pocket formed and the water was not permitted to fill the boiler. When the fire was started steam was generated and the hot water back and boiler exploded. A verdict in the sum of $100 was returned by the jury.

In an action of contract brought by Oscar M. Parham against John Camp, et al, it was announced that a settlement had been made. Peter H. Harp appeared for plaintiff and Harry H. Lipis for defendant.

In No. 325, Nicholas Burland against Sheldon Lasher, an action for work, labor and services and money damages. It was announced that if settlement was not made by January 5, judgment would be stipulated for plaintiff.

Negligence Case.
Another automobile negligence case was then taken up. A jury was taken in an action brought by Henry A. Pekin of this city against James W. Scott of Binghamton for damages sustained to plaintiff's car in an accident on Albany avenue at East St. James street on the night of September 4 of this year. A second action for injuries is also brought by Mrs. Pekin but the two actions were combined and tried together.

Mrs. Pekin, driving her husband's Chevrolet coach, was proceeding over Albany avenue on her way home from a shopping trip when she alleges at the junction of the streets her car was struck by the Locomobile of the defendant and her car badly damaged and herself injured. She claims it was his negligence. It was about 10:30 o'clock at night. She was accompanied by a friend. As she approached the intersection she alleges that the car of defendant came through Albany avenue and started off East St. James street. When near the curb line at the junction he suddenly swerved his car as though to change his course and proceed over Albany avenue to Broadway instead of continuing out East St. James street. She claims she turned her car to the left of Albany avenue over which street she was proceeding and endeavored to avoid an accident but the car of defendant struck her car near the center of the road and when the cars came to a rest they were near the west curb of Albany avenue on her left side of the street.

Defendant claims that it was not his fault but that either Mrs. Pekin became confused or her car went

Paraguay Accepts But Preparations For War Go On

Paraguayans Rush to Arms by the Thousands and Many Are on Their Way to the Northern Border—Great Crowds Await Their Turn to Enlist.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Dec. 18 (AP).—Despite the acceptance by Paraguay of the offer of the Pan-American conference for mediation of its dispute with Bolivia, war preparations were in evidence everywhere today.

Paraguayans have rushed to arms by the thousands and many of them were already on their way to the northern border today. It was announced officially that 50,000 had volunteered and of these 30,000 were accepted and incorporated into the army.

Announcement was made that a group of men, described as deserters from the Bolivian army, had been captured in Lambare, near Asuncion. They were being held incommunicado by the police there.

Three steamers carrying forces combining units of the regular army, civilian volunteers, and officers belonging to the military reserve, left for an unnamed destination in the north. Many of those who sailed had enlisted at the armories not more than 24 hours previously.

The troops marching to the ships were accompanied by an enormous crowd which cheered enthusiastically. During their embarkation, five minutes of silence were observed in honor of officers killed in combat with Bolivian troops. A decree was issued raising the rank of Lieutenants Figari and Castagnino, who were killed in the fighting, to captaincies.

Great crowds stood in line in front of the war office and the military academy awaiting their turn to be enrolled. Most of the men in line were accompanied by their mothers, wives or sweethearts, universally maintaining a brave calm.

MRS. DAVIES IN ITALY SEEKING HUSBAND'S ASHES.

New York, Dec. 18 (AP).—The widow of Arthur B. Davies, internationally known artist and former president of the American Painters and Sculptors' Society, is in Italy seeking her husband's ashes.

Word of the artist's death was first received here yesterday in a cable from Mrs. Davies, who had gone abroad to locate her husband, who had been expected to return early in November. Since 1924 he had spent six months in Italy each year.

In her message Mrs. Davies said she had learned that her husband was dead and she was now seeking friends of his in Italy who could tell her the particulars of his death and the name of the city where his ashes are being held.

Davies, who has born in Utica, N. Y., in 1862, had been called the "American Rodin" because of his feeling for design and his superior craftsmanship. He united with Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, in rebellion against the so-called cliques of the National Academy of Design and they formed the organization known as the American Painters and Sculptors.

Besides the widow he is survived by two sons, Allan Dunbar and Arthur David.

ONE KILLED, FOUR HURT WHEN AUTO HITS FENCE

Salamanca, N. Y., Dec. 18 (AP).—One girl was killed and her four companions, including another girl, were injured when their automobile crashed through a fence and landed upside down in a creek about a mile east of here today.

The dead girl was Eleanor McCune, 17, of Bradford, Pa. The injured were Clarence Braith, Roy Rossmann, Ruth Rounds, 23, and Noel Polivent, all of Falconer. Rossmann suffered a possible fractured ankle and was taken to a hospital.

Polivent, driver of the car, said he and his two companions found the girls walking along the road and offered them a ride. They accepted, and suddenly one of the girls reached for the lighting switch and turned off the lights. Before he could re-light them the car swerved from the road, he said.

wrong, as he alleges that he was proceeding to Kingston at a speed of from 15 to 20 miles an hour when he noticed the Pekin car to his right of the street. He proceeded to cross the U. & D. bridge on Albany avenue and turned to his right to proceed over Albany avenue on his way to the Mitchell House where he was to spend the night. Suddenly and without warning the Pekin car crossed to the left of the road in his path and was struck. He alleges that he was at all times to his right and within four or five feet of the curb. Mr. Scott is familiar with the intersection with Kingston streets. He is a traveling man who sells and services slicing machines used in butcher shops and stores, and is a frequent visitor in Kingston. He is not seeking damages to his car since the only damage was to his bumper.

Mrs. Pekin was injured and was treated at the hospital for her injuries and then returned to her home. A. J. Cook appears for the plaintiff and Judge Augustus Shufeldt and John W. Eckert appear for the defendant.

Hoover Off for Rio Janeiro

Where He Will Spend Three Days Before Beginning The Long Homeward Journey—Extensive Farewell Program in Brazil.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 18 (AP).—Turning the far corner of his Latin-American trip, Herbert Hoover boarded the U. S. S. Utah for Rio Janeiro, where he will spend three days before beginning the long homeward voyage. Brazil had prepared an extensive program for the President-elect as a farewell to the good will tour which carried him more than 10,000 miles into the other half of America for the continuation of the friendly establishment of more cordial relations which will be one of the major aims of his administration.

Concluding his visit to Uruguay, Mr. Hoover carried from this republic deep impressions of its desire to contribute to the peace of the Americas. He gave earnest expression of these impressions in an exchange of speeches with President Campesguay at a farewell banquet which was attended by a distinguished company of Uruguayan and Americans.

Mr. Hoover said Uruguay demonstrated that the moral weight of nations is not based upon size or numbers, but upon the spirit and character of a people. Uruguay is thus an example from the heights and depths of the national soul.

"I have hoped," Mr. Hoover said, "that I might by this visit symbolize the courtesy call from one good neighbor to another that might come with respect and esteem and a desire for intellectual and spiritual cooperation."

Economic exchanges, he said, were of the utmost importance for preservation and betterment of life, but the exchange of ideas were even more vitally important to humanity. From the exchange of ideas, systems of thought and life from which freedom springs were reinforced and strengthened.

Addresses President.
Addressing the Uruguayan president, Mr. Hoover concluded: "Your acts and words spring, I feel, not only from exquisite courtesy but from the generous heart of a free people. I appreciate them on my account, and accept them with gratitude on behalf of my republic, which has been proud to call Uruguay her sister and consistent friend."

Leading Americans of Central and South America who have been following the progress of the Hoover tour, believe its result will be incalculable in promoting friendship. Some of those in various countries visited who came in closest contact with Mr. Hoover in his dealings with the various officials, said he showed an unusual facility in grasping each local situation. This was regarded as especially true in reference to relations between North and South America. Mr. Hoover's ability to present the various viewpoints which apparently served to remove misunderstanding also was praised.

After leaving Rio Janeiro on Christmas eve, Mr. Hoover will decide his future itinerary. Apparently he has decided to eliminate some West Indian stops which were originally planned and possibly Havana will be excluded from the return voyage. Mr. Hoover was believed anxious to get to Florida for conference with party leaders on the making of his cabinet. He also was thought to be anxious to make plans for his own administration, including the tasks to be set for the special session of the new Congress which is to be called primarily for the solution of the farm relief problem.

TWO AIRMAIL PILOTS LOST IN CLOUDS ARE SAFE

Hadley Field, N. J., Dec. 18 (AP).—Two airmail pilots, lost in low hanging clouds enroute from Cleveland, Ohio, to this airport, are alive and safe today. One jumped 5,000 feet with his parachute and the other chanced upon an opening in the clouds which enabled him to land on a hilltop.

Jack Webster jumped from his plane when his fuel supply was exhausted while vainly seeking his destination in the thick weather late yesterday. He came down uninjured in a tree near Suffield, Conn., his plane, which fell into a nearby swamp, being wrecked.

The other pilot, H. P. Little, became lost over New York state and, after dying about blindly into the fog, found his fuel running low, happened upon a rift in the cloud banks through which he caught a glimpse of the earth. Diving through the opening and dropping two fares, Little brought his plane to rest on a hill-top field near Owego, N. Y. His plane was not damaged.

The princess was the widow of a Prussian noble. She had been living in England since the war. She had been a society leader for many years and was considered one of the best dressed women in Europe.

London, Dec. 18 (AP).—Lady Northeast, formerly Jessica Brown, American dancer, was married this morning at the Princess Row register office to Vivian Cornelius.

Lady Northeast, who is the daughter of Mrs. A. W. Starke of Buffalo, N. Y., recently divorced Lord Northesk in Scotland. Lord Northesk is now in the United States where he has been quoted as saying that he hoped to be the first husband of Peggy Hopkins Joyce.

Mr. Cornelius is honorary attaché at the British Embassy in Brussels.

King Better After Disturbed Night

Slight Improvement in Both the General and Local Conditions—Setback Was Merely Temporary.

London, Dec. 18 (AP).—The long and patient struggle to save the life of King George and restore him to health and strength witnessed another of its fluctuations in the last 24 hours, but the latest advices from the sick room this morning indicated an upward turn again.

The morning bulletin of the doctors said that both the king's general condition and the condition around the infected lung area had improved over night, if only slightly.

The bulletin said: "In spite of the king having passed a disturbed night, there is a slight improvement in both the general and local conditions."

These welcome tidings came after a night during which public apprehension prevailed that the king's illness, after encouraging progress over the week-end, might have taken a definite turn for the worse. Such a disquieting possibility was indicated to the popular mind by last night's bulletin.

It was understood that well-informed quarters regarded the latest bulletin as indicating the slight setback reported last night was merely temporary. It was said that it represented part of the ebb and flow which was to be expected.

An anxious crowd in front of the palace had assumed considerable proportions earlier than usual today, despite the foggy morning.

The crowd was greatly relieved when the doctors' report was posted with its more favorable news.

Each day the illness has seemed to take a new turn, sometimes for the better, sometimes for the worse. His doctors warned the country that it was likely to follow this course. They have insisted all along that progress would be slow and difficult, and that downward as well as upward turns must be expected.

Meanwhile, time played its inexorable role and there is a general feeling that each hour when no improvement is noted must take its tax on the strength of the 63-year-old patient. His doctors have not yet said, however, that the king was any weaker than before his operation or before the therapy treatment was begun.

Throughout the ebb and flow of the king's illness, the English press has endeavored to buoy up the nation's hope and scrupulously avoided pessimistic speculation. This morning, however, a note of disappointment over the relapse was found in all the newspapers. They said that what progress the king had made over the week-end was very slight and that with yesterday's setback, anxiety at the palace had increased.

Christmas Mail Handled in City

Post Office Department Expects Heavy Rush This Week—All Windows to be Open Until 9 p. m.—Additional Help to be Employed.

Although so far this season the Christmas mail has been very light at the Kingston post office it is expected that commencing today the volume of mail will be greatly increased. Beginning Wednesday evening all windows at the main office and the two stations will remain open until 9 o'clock, or until all are served. Patrons using the post office will notice that a sign has been placed over one of the letter drops calling attention to the fact that all mail intended for delivery in Kingston should be dropped in that slot. If patrons will comply with this request it will greatly facilitate the handling of Christmas mail.

Commencing Wednesday additional help will be employed by the local department to handle the Christmas mail and by the end of the week there will be an additional force of sixty men employed in handling the delivering the mail in the city.

DOUBLE GUARDS AT RANIERI HOME.

Double guards were placed at the Ranieri home, protecting every approach. Almost at the time Scully was being shot down, a special delivery letter was received by Ranieri threatening his life if he persisted in the prosecution.

Police guards were given Judge Gentzel, all state witnesses and members of the prosecuting staff. The precautions against harm were described as the most elaborate ever taken by Chicago police.

The Ranieri case is down in the police records as the climax to years of Mafia extortion which has kept many Chicagoans of Sicilian birth in constant fear of their lives.

Ten-year-old Billy was snatched into an automobile on his way home from school last September, taken to the country and kept prisoner ten days. He was released shortly after Pettiti had been arrested.

WINDOW CLEANERS HAD A FALLING OUT; COST $30

Max Bernbaum, Morris Shapiro and Harry Hecht, all of North Front street, are partners in the window cleaning business. Several days ago Hecht swore out a warrant for Shapiro on a charge of carrying them with assault in the third degree. The case came up for a trial before Judge Van Buren in police court Monday and Bernbaum and Shapiro were found guilty and each fined $10.

Shot Down by Gunmen.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 18 (AP).—Shooting four times by men firing from a speeding automobile. Marko Tess, 41, was believed fatally wounded while on his way to work early today. The gunmen escaped.

Ole Scully Star Witness in Kidnap Trial Murdered

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP).—The kidnap trial of little Billy Ranieri, dusty from weeks of court room tedium, today was wet with human blood—Ole Scully's blood.

Two bullets through the head and another in the body as he ran the gauntlet of guns in a West Taylor street restaurant late yesterday, and Scully was dead. The prosecution in the Ranieri kidnaping case had lost one of its most important witnesses.

The state had been six weeks in picking a jury to try three men for the abduction of the 10-year-old boy. It had chosen carefully, for it wanted 12 men who would not hesitate to impose the death sentence if it was asking for the men on trial—Angelo Pettiti, Andrew Cappellano and Tony Scully.

Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Hoffman had just completed his opening statement to the jury when this message was received in Judge Robert L. Bentzel's court room: "Ole Scully was shot dead, and the heads or arms of five of his companions were broken with baseball bats by five men who followed them into a restaurant on West Taylor street."

The message created a sensation. "None of our lives are safe," exclaimed the prosecutor, "ours or the witnesses."

"This is a challenge to all law enforcement," said State's Attorney Swanson, "and it will be answered as such."

Those who were beaten severely while Scully was being killed were: Narceno Di Limonico, restaurant owner; Joe Malone, sewer contractor, (as was Scully); Jack Devito, Joe Sabello and Frank Pantalone. Devito is a brother of Mike Devito, another state witness in the Ranieri trial.

The men had come to the restaurant from a funeral, riding in Scully's car, which they parked outside. Suddenly the door flew open and four men entered. Three carried pistols, the fourth was armed with a baseball bat.

"Who owns that car in front?" they demanded to know. Scully and his companions denied knowledge of the car, whereupon the man with the bat, cursing, began beating them. Scully, defying the guns, ran for the front door. Triggers were pressed as he reached it, and he fell dead.

The man with the baseball bat stood over Scully's body and struck it several times.

Even with a dead man on the floor and the sound of their revolvers echoing down the street, the men did not run. They set upon the others, using the bat and the butts of their pistols as clubs.

Pantalone managed to reach the street, screaming: "Help! Murder!" One of the gunmen jabbed a pistol against him and told him to "shut his trap." The other gunmen came running out, got into their car and drove away.

Last Friday Scully counseled with Assistant State's Attorney Hoffman. "I've got plenty of money," Hoffman quoted Scully as saying, "and I'll spend it all to keep Pettiti in jail the rest of his life. My life won't be worth a nickel if Pettiti gets out."

The extent of alarm felt in official circles over the Scully slaying was evidenced today by the elaborate precautions taken to safeguard the lives of all persons involved in the trial. Assistant State's Attorney Hoffman announced that he would take immediate steps to send his children out of the city, and that he and Mrs. Hoffman will move to a hotel until the trial is over.

CHARLES WARNER, PAINTER AND PAPERHANGER, A WOMAN

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Dec. 18 (P)—Charles Warner, 52 years old, who had worked for 60 years in this city as a painter and paperhanger, is a woman, according to officials at the Utica State Hospital, to which she was taken on Saturday.

The woman told officials that no one knew her real name and that no one ever would know, but that she would like to be called "Jane." She said her mother took her to Canada as a small child and left her there for 13 years. Her reason for assuming men's attire was given with frankness, officials said, and she appeared to see nothing unusual in her 60 years of posing.

She said that she wanted work to support her widowed mother and that 60 years ago a woman's wage was insufficient to support two persons. She wanted a man's work, with a man's pay, so she donned men's clothing and got the job. Her employers here said that she displayed a man's efficiency and vigor.

"Charles Warner," as scores of residents of this city still call the woman, had been a county charge for two years but refused to live at the county home and had been placed in a boarding home, from which she disappeared last week. Friday night she was found wandering about the city and was taken to Dr. C. B. Small, municipal health officer, who sent her to the Utica hospital after a mental examination.

Members and friends of both these churches are requested to put forth a special effort next Sunday to be present as it may be the last opportunity to see and hear these three workers from Kingston.

Many Innovations in New Lingerie

Combinations of Garments Add to Convenience and Trimness of Line.

Some extreme novelties are presented in the lingerie for this season, both in the collections received from Paris and in those designed on this side. Along with the conventional white-and-pink garments are ultra-modern models in vivid colors and such innovations as nightgowns and chemises in tan, brown, smoke-gray, pastel shades and black.

For two seasons past and until just lately, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, less attention than usual seems to have been paid to the lingerie. The accepted styles have apparently contented the women of fashion until this season. Now the dainty garments that are worn beneath the new gowns have been brought out in innumerable new and artistic designs.

The styles meet the demand for simplicity. Women today wear as few undergarments as possible, consistent with comfort. The accepted outfit consists of a bralette, a girdle, and a mere scrap of step-in or chemise.

With the arrival of winter more substantial pieces are shown, though many prefer still to wear the outfit in the same weight the year round. The one feature most desired is a plainness in cut that will conform to the lines of the gown. The most successful underwear is that which covers the body so smoothly and symmetrically that the gown will fit faultlessly. In order to make an undergarment, whatever its model, accomplish just this, it must be made of very supple material, and the more sheer the better.

To Obviate Seams.

Fewer separate garments are shown in the latest lingerie outfits, the effort now being to have as few seams and connections as possible. The "singlette" has largely taken the place of at least two of the garments that have heretofore been thought essential. This combines in one the bralette and pantie. It is made ordinarily in glove silk, to follow the contour of the body and to make a smooth foundation for the gown of slim silhouette. This cleverly thought-out undergarment is especially valuable for evening, since the latest models in gowns are either extremely slim, with clinging drapery, or if bouffant, as in the robe de style, have a supple, plain, uncorseted bodice, in which no wrinkles must be apparent.

Many variants of the single undergarment are shown. Perhaps the most subtle lines are achieved in some models of glove silk, which look at the first glance like a bralette to the hip. If the open pantie is a part, or if bloomers are substituted, down to the upper edge of this section. The fashionable colors and shades for fall are all reproduced, or at least reflected, in tones of these new undergarments. In the more striking models, bralette and bloomers are made this is shown complete ensembles of pure white, crepe de chine or any of the other suitable fabrics embroidered with the old-fashioned exceeding fine French embroidery. The sets include nightgown, chemise, pantie and step-in with sometimes a bralette and girdle in lieu of a corset. They are usually entirely embroidered, sometimes with an edge and insertion or entredeux of Valenciennes, baby Irish, or point de Venise lace. The most chic of all, at the moment, is that elaborated with embroidery alone in solid white.

A departure from these severely simple, colorless ensembles in lingerie are those in pastel shades and in black. Gowns and other garments of crepe and the more sheer stuffs are shown in pale yellow, aquamarine blue, sea green, mauve, peach and various shades of rose. There is nothing of the bizarre in even the most colorful of these, and trimming is used with restraint. Some are hem-stitched or embroidered all in the same shade, others are finished with lace. One nightgown is made of light, peach-colored georgette with a flat three-inch band of ecru lace on the edges of the armholes and about the neck, extending obliquely down the bust to the bottom hem.

Ensemble All of Georgette.

An attractive ensemble is made all of georgette in a beautiful shade of violet, finished along the edges with a plain hem, stitched with lavender floss, and with a monogram embroidered in the same silk on the front of each piece. This tailored style is considered most chic, and is shown in many different colors. Green in every tone from jade to the most delicate sea tones is much used. Another set of gown, chemise and bloomers of pale green crepe has a "tailored" finish, achieved by means of a two-inch band which is added with fagoting done by hand. This band, being of a deeper shade of green, forms an effective border, and no other ornamentation is used except the embroidered monogram in the darker green on the gown and chemise.

In quite a different style is an ensemble, also of green in a delicate lustrous shade, which has a gown that might serve as a negligee. This is made with an empire waistline defined with shirring, with ribbon belt tied loosely at one side. Its square neck and short sleeves are finished with a flat band of lace dyed a rich shade of yellow, and a strip of the lace is inserted to form a square at the bottom, back and front.

Some charming nightgowns of glove silk in light colors are trimmed about the neck, armholes and the bottom with a band of georgette. That at the top is finely embroidered to form a yoke. One of these sheer glove-silk gowns with a deep square at the neck and wide armholes is bordered at these points with cream-tinted Valenciennes lace. At one side, the lace is carried in a strip almost to the waistline and a band of the lace is added to the bottom of the gown.

of black glove silk and they are finished with "cut" of black lace and flesh-colored net.

One model of combination chemise and step-in is particularly chic. It is made of pure white crepe de chine, with flat trimming and insets of ecru lace, and is shown in every shape that is now in vogue. Entire sets, comprising a nightgown, chemise and panicle, or a one-piece step-in, are made of white crepe, georgette or chiffon with trim yoke and edge trimmings, of lace dyed in graduated shades of ecru. The favorite lace is point d'Alemon, but some charmingly becoming duty novelty laces are used. It is in the use of color contrasts, with some combination of pure white, oyster white or blue white, and the rich cream, ivory and deep ecru laces, that the style is emphasized.

The night dresses differ slightly from the chemises and step-ins or singlettes, the neck of each being cut

RESTAURANT OWNER TALKED TOO MUCH

TALKED TOO MUCH

Philadelphia, Dec. 18 (AP).—John W. Harris, who operates a restaurant next door to a raided saloon, was arrested on a charge of conspiracy and illegal possession of liquor because he talked too much, police revealed today.

After watching the raid, Lemuel B. Schofield, the new director of public safety, dropped into the restaurant for a cup of coffee. Harris, not recognizing the head of the police department, told his customer that the new director did not know police business and that the old policemen would soon be pulling the wool over his eyes.

The restaurant man is then alleged to have told Schofield that he was interested in the saloon and showed him a secret door from the restaurant to the saloon. Schofield revealed his identity and later ordered a warrant issued for Harris's arrest.

GUSHER BRINGS FORTUNE TO MOTHERLESS CHILDREN.

Sunnysdale, Kas. (AP)—Oil, renowned for its gifts of sudden wealth, is sprouting in a new Klondike near this southern Kansas village, bringing riches to Willard Goodrich, hard-working farmer, and his two motherless children.

The discovery well in the new producing territory is on the Goodrich farm. With a daily output of 7,000 barrels, it is the biggest gusher Kansas has seen in 10 years. It "came in" without warning, drenching the surrounding fields in oil.

A pool of "black gold" four to five feet deep and covering an acre of ground was formed as neighboring farmers with teams hurriedly constructed ditches and dirt dams.

The 50-acre farm on which the well is located was left to the family by the mother when she died 11 years ago. Goodrich has an 18-year-old daughter, Arlene, and a 15-year-old son, Dale.

It's the Mate to Reo Flying Cloud the Master!

If you're the man who didn't quite want to pay Flying Cloud prices last year—step forward one pace and smile... We've added the Mate to Flying Cloud the Master—a size smaller in inches and price—but not in performance. You know what you're after—balanced craftsmanship. A car that will do everything, as well as it ought to be done—a car for the experienced motorist who wants not only miles per hour and a good paint job, but effortless power and solid comfort. Speed—more than you'll ever need—here it is. Absolute dependability—dirt roads or concrete. No hitting the top on jounces when you hit the pace on high. A wheel that steers with a finger. Quick pick-up—to get away before the mob. Internal hydraulic four-wheel brakes that grip instantly—without grabbing or slipping. A construction that makes you look forward to hills. And your wife wants? More comfort inside—more room. A rear seat wider at the bottom to prevent crowding, wider still at shoulder height—no cramping on long runs. A front seat wider, too—so a third passenger won't turn you into a crabby driver. Since squeals set her wild, she wants body-work welded instead of bolted or riveted... And, of course, she wants beauty—clean line that spells speed from nose to spare. No announcement could sell either of you a car, no matter what it said. This one is designed to make you go and look—and take a trial spin. Flying Cloud the Master has already proved itself. If the Mate is half the car we think it is, it will do its own selling. REO MOTOR CAR CO. • LANSING, MICHIGAN

Now you can have a Reo Flying Cloud at a lower price than ever before.

Most Caused Break in Main

About 2:30 o'clock while the contractors of the New York Telephone company were busy connecting along Broadway, near Baymont street, one of the blasts set off broke the big water main that runs down the Broadway hill, supplying the lower section of the city. The break in the water main caused a flood of water to overflow Broadway and run down the Park Avenue hill. Housewives who were getting the evening mail found it impossible to draw water, and although the water department had a force of men on the job as quickly as possible it was not until about 1:30 o'clock this morning that water service to the lower section of the city was restored.

H. HENDERSON ENJOYS HIMSELF WHILE ABROAD

J. H. Henderson, a former hardware man of Kingston, and now in Europe with his wife and daughter, Miss, on a pleasure trip, is enjoying himself in Paris, according to the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune. One of his exploits featured in the newspaper was that of going to cook a Thanksgiving dinner in the true American style in Paris, which resulted in his spending several days in a hospital in that city. He told the reporter that next Thanksgiving he would try either hails or frogs' legs. A day or so later he was having an experience with a bicycle a friend of his, returning to the States, had turned over to him to use and enjoy. His experience with the bicycle in the streets of Paris was the occasion of a column in the Paris edition of the Herald.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS AT KINGSTON CLUB

The Christmas decorations of the Kingston Club building on Wall street, near Main, are attracting considerable attention and many of high artistic taste have passed most favorable comments concerning them. By day the arrangement of evergreen garlands and spruce trees presents a most pleasing aspect, while after dark the profusion of colored lights tastefully arranged makes the Kingston Club stand out as one of the most prettily decorated buildings of the Wall street section. The other decorations of Wall street business institutions and the Christmas tree on the court house lawn harmonize with the Kingston Club's, making a most uniform appearance.

Old London Charter

The charter of William I to the citizens of London—one of the foundation stones of London's liberties—is preserved among other charters at the Guildhall, London.

THE DEALERS IN PEARLS

(By R. J. Wain)

A BEAUTIFUL wooded section on the lower Illinois river. Clear to the water's edge grew the weeping willows, their branches drooping to kiss the parting ripples below. The chatter of red cardinals mingled with the melody of many birds and the stridulating of winged insects. A singular splashing from the shore to a small pond, a turtle jumping itself on a log and the occasional splash of a busy fisher, lent peace and content.

Joe Henderson had regarded the scene with contentment, enjoyment, and a glow of eager anticipation. He was fishing, and as he stood, looking toward the river bank, a large boat had pulled up to the landing. A small white cottage that was built in a willow grove.

"That's Sam Danks again," whispered Joe, "the crookedest pearl buyer that ever skinned an honest clam fisherman. What's he going up there to peep at Mary for? She ain't got no pearls to sell."

But Joe was only partially correct. For Mary did have a pearl to sell. Joe took a very personal interest in the welfare of Mary Birken's, a comely middle-aged widow who dwelt alone in the small cottage.

"Wherever Sam Danks goes there's trouble to follow," proclaimed Joe. "I'm just going to sneak up there and see that he don't make some kind of trouble for Mary."

He had been dragging the river bed for clams with a crowfoot grapple. Now he hastily pulled this contrivance over the gunwales and with just strokes rowed for a pole, about fifty yards below the white cottage.

A few minutes later he stood beneath an open kitchen window effectually concealed by a huge rosebush. Very cautiously he peered over the sill. Sam Danks was expertly appraising a beautiful pearl that lay in the palm of his hand. Fully fifty grains in weight, pear-shaped and bluish black in color. A most lustrous gem of iridescent sheen.

"I've been saving it for years," Mary was saying. "And all the river men tell me it's worth $200."

"Not by itself," answered Danks. "Now if you only had a mate to it to make a matched pair of earrings I'd give you $300 for the pair. But alone what good is it? Just fit for a lavender or a pendant. I'll give you an even hundred for it, that's the best I can do."

"No, I must have $200," insisted Mary. "I've got to roof and repair this house before winter and that's the figure the carpenters have put on it. So it's $200 or nothing."

For ten minutes they dickered and wrangled but to no avail. Mary persisted in her price and all Danks' wiles proved futile. Finally he prepared to leave.

"I'm going to stop at the boat livery for gas," he stated, "then I'm going over to Greer's Island to see what the slanty boaters over there have got in my line. Better think over my offer. I'll stop in again on my way back."

When Danks arrived at the island Joe Henderson was already there waiting for him. The old river man was sitting in an armchair on the sunny porch of his trim little houseboat which was moored first in a long line of similar craft.

"Hello there, old timer," shouted Danks as he approached the island and shut off his motor. "Got anything in my line today?"

"Maybe," answered Joe. Joe drew a small pill box from his pocket and removed the cover. There in a soft bed of cotton lay a beautiful pearl. Fully fifty grains in weight, pear-shaped and bluish-black in color. A most lustrous gem of iridescent sheen.

Dank's eyes glittered as he examined it. An undisputed pearl expert, he recognized it at once as a perfect mate for the pearl Mary had shown him. An expression of avarice spread over his face. He would hold out on his firm, buy the two pearls himself and have them mounted, thereby reaping all the profit.

But Joe Henderson seemed reluctant to sell, and Danks spent a half-hour in persuasive argument. Finally Joe consented to sell, but demanded a stiff price. After considerably more dickering they settled upon the sum of $200 and the gem changed hands.

Sam Danks rushed back to the mainland with all possible speed. Mary was in her little garden weeding a cabbage patch.

"Say," blustered Dank, "seeing as how you need the money and me liking you personally maybe I can do a little better than a hundred on that pearl you showed—"

"Oh, you're too late," responded Mary. "Just a few seconds after you left Joe Henderson came in and gave me two hundred for it."

"What?" shouted Danks. "Say—say, I think you're a couple of crooks—"

"Hold on, three. Don't get insulted."

It was a deep masculine voice. A sturdily built young man stepped from behind a grape arbor and confronted the dazed pearl buyer. It was the game warden, who patrolled that section of the river.

"Oh, you're in on this, too," sneered Danks.

"Never mind that," answered the warden. "I stood on the bank and

Concerning Decorative Lights

Miss Elizabeth Plank
Home Service Bureau
Director for Kingston

Says,

"The wide-spread publicity concerning the use of electrical lighting effects for Christmas decoration has brought to our Home Service Bureau many inquiries concerning the characteristics of different varieties of lighting sets.

"There are many makes on the market, most all of them satisfactory, but the Noma sets which we are offering to our customers will probably best serve for this explanation.

"To begin with, Noma set No. 100 consists of eight differently colored lamps wired in series on one strand. This set sells at $2.50. If you wish to use such a set out of doors, be sure and ask for Noma set No. 115 which is exactly the same as No. 100, except that the wires are rubber covered instead of with silk, thereby making them weatherproof. Noma set No. 115 can be purchased for $2.70.

"You probably have noticed that some of these decorative lights go on and off intermittently. You may secure this very pretty effect if you ask for Noma set No. 116 Twinkling, which consists of sixteen colored lights, two strands of eight lights each. In this set there is included a device which alternately shuts off the current from one strand and the other, thereby producing the twinkling effect. Noma set No. 116 Twinkling sells for $7.50.

"A new development in Christmas tree and other decorative lighting is the multiple set. The advantage of multiple over series sets which are referred to above is that a single lamp burning out in this new multiple set does not throw the whole set in darkness, as is the case in series sets. This greatly simplifies locating burnt-out bulbs and replacing them.

"Noma set No. 3000 is a seven light multiple set and sells at $4.50. Noma set No. 3500 is a seven light multiple set with a twinkling device in its circuit. This sells at $6.50.

"By the way, we can supply you with individual lamps to fit any of the sets we have talked about, but be sure to specify whether it is for a series set or a multiple set. These individual lamps sell for from 12c to 30c each.

"If you are in Kingston do drop in our Home Service Bureau and see these sets in actual operation."

REPORTS OF PROSPERITY AT REDEEMER CHURCH

At the annual report meeting of the Ladies' Aid and Mission Society of Redeemer Lutheran Church a glowing report of the activities of the past year was given. The ladies raised over $1,400, practically all of which they will turn over to the church. The Sewing Circle raised an additional $200 and has already turned over this amount to the church treasurer. Only once in the history of the Ladies' Aid was a larger amount raised than this year. During the meeting the pastor gave the third lecture on the mission course, "Friends of Africa". The annual election of officers of the Ladies' Aid will be held at the January meeting. Throughout the year the society has provided altar flowers when otherwise not given and have distributed them each week to the shut-ins. They also co-operated with the Men's Club in having the altar vessels renovated.

He is to settle down in this North Carolina coast village near the lighthouse he has kept for 15 years. The lighthouse was built in 1798. Before coming here, Captain Austin was assistant keeper at Cape Hatteras, the tallest lighthouse in the world. The captain will be 65 next September.

STRANGE ACTIONS OF DEER LEAD TO DISCOVERY OF STILL.

Olean, N. Y., Dec. 18 (AP)—Strange actions of several deer, said to have become intoxicated by eating fermented wheat and barley mash, led to the discovery of a liquor still on Linestone Run, Corporal Percy K. Lehner and Trooper K. S. Sanford said. Acting on a tip by a resident who had observed the deer, the Troopers investigated and found a specially constructed building in a gully, sheltered by brush and undergrowth, they said. Inside was a copper still which had not been in operation for several days, according to the Troopers.

Flu Spreads Eastward With Great Rapidity

A Good Tonic Often Prevents Attack of Flu—"Keep Healthy" Is the Best Advice During Epidemic of This Nature.

Starting in Los Angeles with a few scattered cases several weeks ago the present epidemic of influenza has spread eastward with great rapidity, until today over 200,000 cases have been reported in the west and middle west. While it is regarded as a milder form than the epidemic of 1918 many deaths are being reported daily.

While the flu itself is very dangerous its after effects are even more to be dreaded. Just because the fever has subsided, the cough ended or the congestion cleared up do not be fooled into thinking you are well. The greatest care must be exercised at this time and the best advice that can be given as a preventive of this dreaded disease is to keep the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels in a healthy active state. Persons whose systems are clogged with poisons caused by fermenting undigested foods in the stomach or poisonous waste matter in the intestinal tract are most susceptible to the influenza germ.

To keep these vital organs in a healthy active state you should build yourself up by taking an invigorant like Dr. French's Nu-Erb, one that strengthens and regulates the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels and drives toxic poisons and waste matter from the system.

Visit the Nu-Erb man at McBride's Drug Store, 312 Wall street, at the first opportunity and learn more of this famous herbal compound. It will quickly build up the most run down system. Put an end to suffering from indigestion, constipation, headaches, dizziness and rheumatism and other ailments. Nu-Erb will also increase your appetite, make you sleep soundly and have you feeling stronger, healthier and happier than you have for a long long time.

Antiangos Kayos Sangor in Second

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP).—A twenty-year-old Cuban youth, Armando Santiago, today was the foremost contender for the world's junior heavyweight championship. He gained this position by a surprising two-round knockout victory over Joe Sangor of Milwaukee last night.

Sangor, hitherto regarded as the leading contender for the 130-pound title, was smashed to defeat in a spectacular battle that stunned 10,000 spectators in the coliseum. The freckled face Milwaukee had accepted the match merely a warning up for the championship encounter with Tod Morgan of Seattle, the title-holder, in Milwaukee on New Year's day.

Instead of finding Santiago a shover, Sangor met a two-fisted boxer who traded punch for punch. Santiago flustered Sangor as though he were just an ordinary pug and egger, instead of a contender for a championship. After a stalling first round in which they traded punches like two longshoremen, Sangor came out confidently in the second.

Within the twinkling of an eye he was groggy and reeling from a sharp right cross to the chin. Sangor nailed him flush on the point of the jaw with a short right that knocked him silly.

Sangor attempted to grab his opponent, but the Cuban wrestled him and cracked him with another right. Sangor dropped to the floor at the count of nine.

As he struggled to his feet his face was ashen white and his knees were sagging. Santiago, boxing calmly and with deliberation, let fly another right that knocked Sangor off his feet across the ring, where he crawled flat on his face. He tried to get up through instinct alone, but he was too exhausted to move. He managed to get himself up to one knee, then slumped back to the floor and fell victim to the fatal tenth round.

Santiago, never before engaging in a windup of major importance, has been boxing with indifference since he took up the sport three years ago. He only recently returned from Cuba after an enforced rest of nine months due to illness. Last night's fight was his first since his return. He is a sharp hitter with either right or left hand. He took his fighting name from his home town, Santiago de Cuba.

Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, world's light heavyweight champion, on over "Big Boy" Peterson of Minneapolis. Loughran, bidding for a second heavyweight championship, decisively beat his heavier and taller opponent in ten rounds, spotting him 17½ pounds weight.

Loughran had the margin in eight of the ten rounds by his masterful boxing. In the third round he was forced to retreat because of a head that trickled in his eye. Peterson fought a courageous fight, hanging away with his right, but with Loughran dominating the fight.

Another upset was the defeat of Eddie Callahan, the slugging southwester middleweight, who was forced to surrender to Ted Ross of Chicago in the seventh round, after hitting the canvas six times.

KID CHOCOLATE WINS ON TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

New York, Dec. 18 (AP).—Kid Chocolate, a tiny little Cuban negro, who has been cutting a wide swath through the ranks of the lesser bantamweights, has overcome the biggest obstacle he has encountered thus far in his road to the top, Emil Paluso of Salt Lake City.

The Cuban handed the tough Westerner a terrific lacing through eight rounds of a bout last night and won a technical knockout when the referee decided Paluso no longer could defend himself and stopped the fighter.

Paluso showed only one flash of good form in the fourth, when he got a close and slowed the Cuban up temporarily with a few hard body punches.

Senior League Game Results

At the Y. M. C. A. court Monday night the Senior League games were played. Rose defeated Fein, 22 to 20; Fox's team swamped Dolson's squad, 60 to 24, and Davitt's quartermen won their first defeat before Thompson's aggregation, 36 to 32.

The first game was hard fought throughout the first half, the score being 19-14 in favor of Rose's team at the end of the opening period. In the second half the Rose team was hard pressed, but managed to come out on top at the end, 22 to 20.

The second game was a big win for Fox's team over Dolson's team. Fox's men got the jump on their opponents early in the game and at half time the tally was 31 to 18. Throughout the second half the Fox team continued to score heavily and when the tilt ended the score was: Fox, 60; Dolson, 24.

The third contest saw "Tom" Davitt's team go to defeat for the first time. Both teams played with four men and it was hard for them to cover the floor which resulted in Thompson scoring 16 points and Stumpf 12. Joyce rolled up 19 points, most of which were made from the center of the floor. The final score was 36 to 32 in favor of Thompson.

FOOTBALL RULES IN THE '70S SIMPLE

Vermont Alumnus Unearths Code of 54 Years Ago.

Back in the good old days of the '70s football was a much simpler proposition than at present. At the University of Vermont half a century ago the annual interclass football game had all the thrills without the rules of a modern game. Louis Shaw of the class of '74 unearthed a list of these old rules to glorify the combat for use in the football arena.

The rules follow:

"The privilege of the first warn is to be decided by tossing up a cent or 6-cent piece, the side having the warn choosing their side of the field.

"The ball having been placed in position in the center of the field by the umpire, a torch by the warmer constitutes a warn.

"The ball having been placed in position, all players excepting the warmer are to remain on their respective sides at a distance of at least thirty (30) feet from the center of the field until the ball has been warned.

"After the ball has been warned, no player of the class having the warn is allowed to touch the ball until it has been touched by a member of the opposing class.

"Any player catching the ball on the fly is allowed to throw it with his hands, make a drop kick, or to carry it any distance within the boundaries of the field unless prevented by another player.

"No player is allowed to pick the ball from the ground or to catch it otherwise than on the fly.

"No player is allowed to kick the ball over the boundaries of the ground.

"In case of a violation of Rule 7 the ball is to be taken at a distance of thirty (30) feet from the spot of the last kick and in a direction directly toward the goal of the offending player. Each class will form a line, and the umpire will roll the ball between these lines. In case it cannot be proven by whom the ball was kicked across the boundary the clause relating to the distance to be lost shall be void.

"In case of any violation not above specified the offending party loses the warn."

MOSHER EARNS RIGHT TO MEET NICK PALMER

Jack "Red" Mosher of Newburgh earned the right to meet Nick Palmer, National Guard middleweight title holder, by defeating Irish Tommy Jordan at the 14th Regiment armory, New York city, Saturday night. Mosher and Jordan were matched with this agreement in the contract, it is said.

According to sports writers of Mosher's home city, he fought the best scrap of his career against Jordan. Irish Tommy, who was figured an easy victor over Mosher, sent the Newburgher to the canvas in the first round with a heavy blow to the jaw, but the Billy City pugilist shook off the punch and continued in a winning manner.

Just when Mosher and Palmer will come together has not been announced. The Newburgh fighter figures on laying off for a short spell to permit a cut over his eye to heal. He was nursing this before he went into the ring with Jordan, Saturday.

GREENLEAF AND LAYTON WIN IN BILLIARD MATCHES

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP).—Ralph Greenleaf of New York, world's pocket billiard champion, and Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., the Titan-haired king of the three cushion artists, have turned back the first of four attacks to dislodge them from their throne.

In the two round-robin tournaments at Orchestra Hall last night, Greenleaf triumphed over Pasquale Natale of Baltimore, 125 to 114, in 36 innings, while Layton edged out the veteran Gus Copulos of Detroit, 50 to 48, in 47 innings of spectacular shot making.

Two men, recognized as the greatest threats to the champions, also came through their matches. They are Frank Taberski of Schenectady, New York, who defeated Erwin Rudolph of Chicago, 125 to 114, in the pocket billiard match, and Willie Hoppe of New York, who beat the former champion, Otto Reisel of Philadelphia, 50 to 35. Hoppe is after the three cushion title, the only billiard crown he never has won.

Today's pocket billiard matches bring together Greenleaf and Rudolph and Taberski and Natale, while Layton meets Reisel and Hoppe meets Copulos in three cushion matches. The tournament ends tomorrow night.

LEWIS, VETERAN BOXER, WALKS OUT OF THE RING

parently have not sufficed to cure Ted (Kid) Lewis, former welterweight champion, of "temperament." The veteran boxer walked out of the ring in the first round of a 10-round bout with Charley Belanger, Canadian light-heavyweight champion, here last night when he became "pounded" at Referee Lon Marsh.

The men had hardly squared off when Marsh ordered Lewis to remove a rubber mouthpiece. After some dispute the Briton obeyed. Then Marsh was forced to warn Lewis for holding. The veteran of 259 or more ring encounters paid little or no attention and when Marsh broke up several clinches by main strength, Lewis held up his hands, hopped through the ropes and stalked away to his dressing room. Belanger was awarded the decision and the boxing Commission announced Lewis's end of the purse would be turned over to charity.

So unexpected was Lewis's action that the fans failed to recover from the shock in time to give vent to their protests while the Briton still was within hearing range.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, Dec. 18.—On Sunday morning, December 23, the Sunday school of St. John's Church will meet at 9:30. Evening prayer and sermon at 7:30 o'clock by the Rev. S. Glover Dunseath of West Park. A cordial welcome to every one.

On Christmas eve, December 24, at 8 o'clock, the Sunday school of St. John's Church will hold their Christmas festival, after which there will be a social hour for the children, in the Parish House. At 11:30 midnight Mass, the choir of St. John's Church will sing the Christmas carols. Every one is invited to attend.

GOVERNOR SMITH MEETS OUT CHRISTMAS CHEER

Albany, Dec. 18 (AP)—Governor Smith met out Christmas cheer to three inmates of the state's penal institutions Monday by commencing their sentences so that they may be released shortly.

Those who were the beneficiaries of executive clemency were George E. Burgess, convicted of grand larceny, first degree, in Monroe county in January, 1926, and given a five to ten year term; William J. Flynn, sentenced to five to ten years for forgery, first degree, in Jefferson county in November, 1927, and Joseph Levy, serving a sentence for assault in the second degree, committed in Clinton county.

The governor reduced Burgess' sentence by one year, saying in a memorandum that his action was taken upon the recommendation of the district attorney who prosecuted the case. The district attorney told Governor Smith that all the persons associated with Burgess in the financial transaction which formed the basis of the prosecution had been punished, and that "in the case of the type of man Burgess is he has served sufficient time."

Action in Flynn's case was taken upon the recommendation of the trial judge, the present district attorney of Jefferson county and the district attorney who prosecuted the case. Added to these recommendations, the officials of the bank affected by the forgery also urged clemency.

The judge, who sentenced Levy urged the governor to extend clemency, saying that the man's conduct in prison had been excellent and that "in my more mature opinion I believe that his sentence was a little too severe."

Ulster County Shoot.

The outstanding feature of the Ulster County Gun Club shoot held Saturday afternoon was the work of "Bud" Fromer, who has a new trap gun that he prizes very much. "Bud" in a contest for honors with A. R. King, brought down 21 out of 25 birds. Others who enjoyed the shoot were Messrs. Morten, Longfellow, Coles, Preston, Finch and Caunitz. The club is planning to hold another turkey and chicken shoot on Christmas Day, starting at 10 a. m.

Two Christmas Trees Placed

The Central Business Association has had two large Christmas trees placed on central Broadway, one at the Central Post Office and the other at Henry street. Both trees are beautifully illuminated with colored electric lights at night, and add much to the holiday attractiveness of that section of the city. Many of the merchants of the association have also had Christmas trees placed in front of their places of business, which are illuminated at night.

BRIDGE USED BY GULLS FOR OPENING SHELLFISH.

Atlantic Beach, N. C. (AP)—Construction of a concrete bridge from the mainland to the beach here has changed the feeding habits of sea gulls in this vicinity.

The gulls feed on scallops and other shellfish found on the bottom of Bogue Sound. The hungry gull would drop out of the sky into the water, catch a scallop in its beak and fly to the nearest rock or hard beach to drop the shell fish and break it.

Now the gulls fly immediately to the bridge, drop their quarry on the hard surface of the span and have lunch on the spot. Occasionally a gull loses a part of its meal when it drops a shellfish on a passing automobile.

HUNTER MISTAKEN FOR SQUIRREL SHOT IN HEAD.

Syracuse, Dec. 18 (AP)—A Syracuse duck hunter was shot in the head Sunday, mistaken for a squirrel. Stephen Alexander, 32, of this city, was lying partly concealed by the reedy growth on the shore of a pond near the village of Canara, William H. Miller, another Syracuse hunter, recognizing nearby, sighted the fur collar on Alexander's coat, and fired.

Several shots pierced Alexander's head. He is being treated at a Syracuse Hospital.

Holiday Spirit In Woodstock

Woodstock, Dec. 17.—The village indeed takes on the ideal holiday spirit during the past week. An inspiration here is the community Christmas tree, made possible through the efforts of the Woodstock Chamber of Commerce. A beautiful tree for the purpose is donated by one of the members of the Chamber, Joe Hutter. It would be difficult to find a more appropriate specimen for the purpose than one which shines resplendently every evening on the village green. Lighting was done by Mr. Hutter, who donated the wiring materials and bulbs. There are just one hundred of these which demonstrate two thousand candle power. The officers of the Chamber of Commerce, headed by its president, Leon Carey, have been untiring in their effort to realize this plan and certainly have justified the means. Also, attention should be made of the most generous contribution of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, who are giving the current for a period of time understood to be three weeks from the time that the tree was erected. The "News Shop" has also taken the splendor of the Christmas tree and a tree stands near to the entrance which shines somewhat less brightly but with all the fervor of its brother across the green. But there is only to enter this most attractive place of business known far and near as the "News Shop" to see the up to date methods, the attractive decorations and the splendid variety of stock that Woodstock shows this season. Windows are decorated in the "modern" way which is attracting so much favorable comment in New York. It is of course not to be wondered at that an artistic community like Woodstock should show something attractive in the field of artistic decoration and certainly for the showing of a novel display of unique and most attractive articles it is here. Mr. Carey has shown the same determination to accomplish in his own place of business that he has shown for months in the Chamber of Commerce. The Art Shop, the Nook, and the Jack Horner shop are also gayly festooned for the Christmas season and little could be added to these as well as the mercantile establishments to make the whole display more attractive.

SHANDAKEN.

Shandaken, Dec. 17.—The Home Bureau will hold an all day's meeting at the home of Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt on Thursday, December 20. Miss Nance of Kingston will give a demonstration in home dressing. The ladies of the community who are not members are invited to attend and join.

Midweek services of the M. E. Church will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt on Wednesday evening, December 19.

The Sunday school will hold their Christmas tree service in the church on Friday evening of this week, December 21. There will be an entertainment consisting of songs and recitations appropriate to the occasion.

W. D. Coons and family motored to Albany Sunday, where Mrs. Coons is recovering from an operation. Her many friends wish for her speedy recovery and that she will be home soon.

Mrs. Melissa Crispell has gone to Poughkeepsie to spend the winter with her daughter.

Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt, who had been visiting her parents at Highland a few days, has returned home. The Christian Endeavor had an election of officers at their business meeting on Friday night. The following officers were elected: Miss Anna B. Riseley, president; Henry Knight, vice president; Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt, secretary; Burr Knight, treasurer and Miss Anna B. Riseley, organist.

Work has been suspended for the winter on the Rip Van Winkle golf course, which puts a number of men out of employment.

Charles Ford, who has served his time in the United States Navy, will be home soon. His many friends will be glad to see him.

ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, Dec. 17.—Jeremiah Young passed his 84th birthday Wednesday at his home with his family. Mr. Young is one of the few surviving members of the 120th Regiment of the Civil War.

There was a good attendance at the K. of P. dance Saturday night. Two weeks from last Saturday night there will be a masquerade dance in the hall.

Mr. Light from the New Brunswick Seminary preached a very interesting sermon Sunday afternoon. This is the third time Mr. Light has supplied this pulpit and he is always a welcome visitor.

Miss Amy Christiansa enjoyed her birthday dinner with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Christiansa Saturday.

Walter Weeks of Accord spent Sunday with his grandmother, Mrs. Alice Weeks, and accompanied her to church.

Asa Purcell, who is a boatman in New York harbor, is stopping with his brother, David Purcell.

Mrs. Mary Ella Vandemark of Kerkonson visited her mother Sunday.

ST. REMY.

St. Remy, Dec. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Planck and Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Van Vliet motored to Newburgh on Friday evening and attended a show.

The buses are crowded these days with Christmas shoppers.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Houghtaling of Port Ewen and Miss Belle and Hawley Krom were supper guests of Mrs. Kenneth Krom Thursday evening, the occasion being Mr. Krom's birthday.

Dan Carney is home from the hospital much improved. S.

STONE RIDGE P. T. A.

MEET FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Friday afternoon the Stone Ridge Parent-Teacher Association held its regular meeting for December. Much business was transacted showing that even in the busy Christmas season this organization has the welfare of the school at heart. It was decided to buy supplementary readers for the second grade and a new health book for each room of the school. The chairman of the Benevolent Committee was instructed to spend some money for Christmas cheer from the fund which was raised for benevolent purposes.

Plans were made for a food sale on January 19 and part of the proceeds to be used to start a fund to send the president to the state convention in Troy next spring.

As the program for January meeting is to be a discussion on keeping the children in school a motion was passed to have all the upper grade children write an essay on "Benefits Derived from Going to School".

The writer of the best essay is to be given a prize and the essay to be read at the next meeting. The subject of this meeting was "Books for Children". The committee, Mrs. Culver and Miss Craft, took charge of the program. Mrs. Culver read an article on points for choosing children's books.

Through the courtesy of Forsyth & Davis of Kingston and friends and members of the association a large number of children's books were on display. This gave parents a splendid opportunity, especially at this season, to select books that they might wish to buy for their children. Cocoa and crackers were served during the social hour.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

A program of Christmas carols will be presented in the Atwater Kent Radio Hour, Sunday night, by a mixed quartet including Olive Kline, Edna Baker, Arthur Hackett and William Simmons. The program includes old traditional airs of England and other countries. Miss Kline, making her initial appearance as an Atwater Kent artist, is now as famous for her radio recitals as for her many phonograph records, and Miss Baker also has a national reputation through her records. Mr. Hackett has a personal following throughout the country from his appearances with the principal symphony orchestras and many recitals. Mr. Simmons, one of America's foremost baritone, is well known to the Atwater Kent audience.

A Christmas Day organ recital, with the program arranged to take full advantage of the varied possibilities of the modern pipe organ, will be given by The Eveready Hour, Tuesday evening, December 25, over the coast-to-coast network of 29 N. E. C. stations. Lew White, famous American organist, will play the organ. Mr. White is known wherever he plays the organ in America gathering for his work as chief organist of the Roxy Theatre in New York City. Mr. White has selected familiar and tuneful numbers for the program, including a musical novelty, "Musical Snuff Box." Two soloists will also be heard, Janet Gardier and Austin Buchard, in groups of songs.

An appropriate selection of Christmas songs and carols will feature the NBC station, Sunday night, December 23, at 7 o'clock. Reinald Werrenschmidt, famous baritone, whose weekly all-hours of instructive melody have become justly famous will be assisted by a special male quartet. The program will include such Christmas season favorites as "God Rest You Merry Gentlemen" and "Carols of the Noel of the Bretons Waits." "The Holy Child" will be a feature song in a program that closes with the beautiful "Nazareth" by Gounod.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, will deliver a short address in the General Motors Family Party on Christmas eve. On this occasion, which will be Mr. Sloan's first appearance before the microphone, he will extend holiday greetings to the big "Family" which is now linked together on the air from coast to coast as a result of the recent addition of the Orange network to the General Motors Hour. Three artists of first magnitude will present the musical program. They are Maria Kurenko, famous Russian coloratura soprano; Everett Marshall, the youngest American baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, and Adriani Schubert, the symphony orchestra conductor. An hour's program of popular classical numbers will be given.

License Plates Going Slowly

Reports just received from Albany have caused the Ulster County Automobile Club to issue an urgent appeal to its members and to the public to obtain license plates during the next few days, according to LaMonte Simpkins, president.

Commissioner Charles A. Hartnett of the Motor Vehicle Bureau has appealed to the Ulster County Automobile Club because the latest checkup on licenses being issued all over the state shows a tardiness on the part of the public not apparent before in recent years.

The Motor Vehicle Commissioner is alarmed at this situation as it will mean either that there will be an unprecedented last minute rush for plates which will swamp the various issuing offices or else hundreds of thousands of motorists will not have license plates for their cars when the "bell" rings January 1st.

"Every member of the Ulster County Automobile Club," President Simpkins said today, "is earnestly urged to immediately make application for his car plates."

"We hope that not only the members of our club but the public at large will heed this warning, thus cooperating to relieve the work of the bureau, county clerks and Automobile Clubs during the holiday rush period and also doing away with the cape of matching or contrasting material, not necessarily because one needs it for comfort but because one feels it necessary to chic.

The cape suit has of course been attempted and not unsuccessfully before, but it gives every promise of outdistancing its own record from now on. First, because the capes are so smartly cut, second, because they are so frequently smartly furled along the edge, the bottom excepted.
Capes, like jackets vary in length, but in the smartest cases they permit at least a glimpse of the skirt.

While princess lines are heralded far and wide as of paramount importance for spring, form revealing lines are by no means the only ones with a chance of winning out. Nor is it difficult to visualize the effective contrast between a swinging cape and a molded dress, or semi-fitted suit.

Paris reports dwell enthusiastically upon evening capes, the more sensational of which are abbreviated. That this cape is linked by color to the slippers is one of the amusing fads of a winter which seems particularly rich in such fancies. Jewelry has become the connecting link of so many ensembles that one wonders what fashionables depended upon to construct their color harmonies when only genuine jewels were correct.
Another relationship has sprung up between the evening hat and the evening bag, and the ultra-smart select their smoking sets in enamel to match or to accent some particular tone of the costume. The elegant Parisienne is quite as particular to have her cigarette, case, holder and lighter in harmony with her costume, as her gloves, slippers or fan.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS.

A Smart Frock for the Growing Girl.
6318. The real nice thing about this model is its suitability for many materials. It is pictured in printed velvet with crepe for the trimming.
Printed jersey, wool crepe or georgette would also be desirable, and for cotton prints or silk crepe it is equally attractive. Below the shaped plastron and at the sides, pleats are formed that lend graceful fulness to the dress. A neat collar, plain fitted sleeves, and a narrow belt complete this style. The sleeve may be finished in short length, as shown in the small view.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. To make the dress for a 10 year size as pictured in the large view, will require 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material together with 5/8 yard of contrasting material for facings on collar, plastron and belt. If made with short sleeves, 1/2 yard less of the figured material will be required. To finish with narrow trimming or bias binding will require 3/4 yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

MRS. HARRIS GRANTED DECREE OF DIVORCE FROM HUSBAND

Evelyn V. Harris, young and comely, of Kingston, was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from her husband, Clarence, Kingston chauffeur, because Clarence was unduly intimate with women not his wife, by Justice Morschauser in special term of Supreme court Saturday morning, says the Poughkeepsie Star. Clarence did not contest the action, or did he appear personally.
His sole representative was W. J.
Miller, Kingston attorney. Grant
M. Brinnler, Saugerties, was attorney for Mrs. Harris.

It did not take much time to untie the marital knot once the case got to trial. Mrs. Harris took the stand to say that she was the wife of the defendant, that she knew the contents of the complaint and had not conceded the offense alleged, or had they been committed with her consent, connivance, privity or procurement.
Then she was excused and Lloyd A.
Martin, friend of Harris, took the stand.

He told reluctantly, of an automobile trip he took to Albany with Harris and two women and how they stayed at an Albany hotel in adjoining rooms. The woman with Harris was not Mrs. Harris, he said. After his brief and reluctant testimony he was excused and the court ordered the decree granted on the filing of proper papers.

NO SO-CALLED "SALE"
of SHAYNE FURS

Our furs are never priced high enough to permit alleged "reduc-merchandise specially made up for "sale" purposes.

IN keeping with the unvarying policy of this institution we will hold NO so-called "sale", on any pretext whatever, either before or after Christmas or at any other time.

All our furs are marked with minimum prices when they are first exhibited here. As our patrons know, these regular prices are almost invariably as low or lower than the prices at which fur of equal value is sold elsewhere during limited "sale" periods.

The intrinsic value of the fur you purchase here is assured by 63 years of scrupulous business integrity—NOT by the questionable statement that it used to cost twice as much as it does now.

MARTIAL LAW IN KABUL, SAY TRAVELERS

Peshawar, India, Dec. 18 (AP).—Travelers arriving from Afghanistan today said martial law had been proclaimed in Kabul. Assemblies of more than five persons had been forbidden and a curfew order was being enforced. There were frequent arrests.

Apparently the truce signed at Jalalabad affected only Mohammedans. The rebels surrounded the Afghan troops at Nimla, near Jalalabad.

Copies of an edict calling on the people to obey their ruler have reached Peshawar. It was signed by 20 important Mullahs.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 18 (AP).—The stock market displayed a strong upturn today in one of the duller sessions since last summer. With wide-spread predictions of another "money squeeze" before the end of the year, several of the large traders have practically suspended operations for the time being. Most of the leading commission houses also continue to urge caution in the making of new commitments at this time.

Business news generally is favorable. The copper industry is again talking of 17 cent copper in the near future. One of the largest New York department stores reported record-breaking holiday sales. Each day also brings forth new merger reports, a consolidation of New York meat firms being one of the day's developments.

Call money advanced 1/8 per cent and dropped to 6, delaying the expected stiffening at least another day, but time money continues firm at the highest levels in several years. Mail order and merchandising shares were buoyant in anticipation of record-breaking holiday trade. National Bells Hess ran up 10 points to a new high as 18 1/2. Montgomery Ward climbed 9 1/2 points. Sears Roebuck 5 and a number of others moved up 2 to 4 points. Coppers also extended their yearly gains. American Smelting selling 5 1/2 points higher. Greene Cananea Copper 4 1/2 and Howe second 3 1/2.

The long-awaited pre-automobile show bullish demonstration in the automotive shares also developed with Packard, Timken Roller Bearing and Electro Auto Lite marking up gains of 3 points or more, and Chrysler 2 1/2. Pierce Arrow common touched a new top at 27 1/2. Columbia Carbon was bid up more than 6 points to a new high at 11 1/2.

Other stocks to move into new high ground included Elsenlohr, Federal Light and Traction and Granby Copper. National Tea jumped 23 points. DuPont 7 1/2. A. M. Byers 6 1/2. Texas and Pacific 6. Wright Aeronautical 5 1/2. Western Union and National Biscuit 5 each and Allied Chemical and Bush Terminal 4 each.

Case Threshing, off 5, was one of the few soft spots.

She was born on October 3, 1845, and for over half a century she had resided in the old Ellsworth home in Port Ewen. She was a woman of exceptional Christian character, and by her many acts of kindness she endeared herself to all who knew her. She was a charter member of the Missionary Society of the Reformed Church, a member of the Ladies' Aid Society, and the Home Department, and was a willing and active worker in the Sunday school until her advancing age made it impossible for her to do so. Interment in the Port Ewen cemetery.

Driver of Truck Load of Alcohol Died of Injuries

Monday morning about 7:30 o'clock an international truck was wrecked at Boston Corners, Columbia county. State Troopers Minnick and Arthur De Sornaeu, who were called to the scene of the accident, found that the truck contained a load of alcohol. The car had left the road and turned over in a ditch. The alcohol was in five gallon cans, which were scattered around the scene. The driver of the truck had evidently fallen asleep at the wheel or his truck had skidded.

The State Troopers ascertained that the driver of the truck had been removed to the Sharon Hospital at Sharon, Conn., and going to the hospital found that the driver had died of his injuries. Discovered on his person was a driver's license which bore the name of Frank E. Chrystal of 18 City Terrace, Newburgh. There was also an owner's license found on his person which bore the name of Harold W. Ymsignor of 16 City Terrace, Newburgh.

The agents of the Kingston prohibition office were notified of the facts and took charge of the truck and its cargo. When the truck upset many of the five gallon cans had broken and the contents leaked out. The truck and the cargo were brought to Kingston for storage.

MUSICAL REVUE MAKING
HIT AT BROADWAY THEATRE

The musical revue "Honeymoon Town" which opened at the Broadway Theatre on Monday pleased large audiences at all performances that day. The musical comedy company will hold the boards all this week at the theatre, presenting an entirely new show commencing Thursday. The costumes are exceptionally fine, the girls of the chorus are pretty and the comedians are funny. An added attraction is Corinne Fitzgerald and her St. Louis Syncopators. The picture for the first half of the week is Elinor Glyn's "Mad Hour" and conveys an interesting story that is logically worked out.

Move Small Trees

In general, the best time for moving small trees from one to two feet in height is in the fall or early spring. These trees can be moved at that time without piling the earth around the roots. If care is taken to place them immediately in a tub or bucket of water and plant them as rapidly as possible, never allowing the roots to dry for a moment. Pack the dirt solidly around their roots when they are placed in their new location.

LUXURY LOUNGING ROBES MADE OF LOVELY SHEER METAL WEAVES

WHEN weary from the stress and turmoil of club and business life, what so soothing to tired nerves and so restoring to one's poise as to retreat into the quiet of home, there to wrap oneself within the caressing silken folds of an utterly feminine lounging robe? Even "rose colored glasses" can do no more in making the world grow suddenly beautiful.

We are getting back to the old-fashioned, now new-fashioned, idea of elaborate teagowns—hostess gowns. If you please, as recorded in the modern style vocabulary. These beautiful creations of gorgeous materials which mimic of fashion is expected to wear in boudoir and home environment are everything that feminine fancy loves to picture in the way of luxury and enchantment.

Such lovely fabrics as enter into the making of the robe d'intime! Gold and silver weaves, velvet, satin, marabou and ostrich trimming, to which add decorative hand painting and artful embroidery and, oh yes, lace! Do not forget lace, for some of the most alluring models are all of silken or metal lace in tones and tints of ravishing beauty.

Steeles are especially relied upon by the creators of the boudoir robe—beautiful to give grace and charm to the silhouette. When the material is as exquisitely sheer and supple as is the lovely silver-brocaded peach chiffon

FASHION TURNS ITS SPOTLIGHT ON SHEER STRIPED VELVET

HAVING duly broadcast the fact of the voguishness of striped velvets, striped cottons and striped silks, fashion is now turning its spotlight on striped velvets. Stripes for velvet are newer than the little all-over printed effects.

When the stylist chooses striped velvet for the sports frock, it is more likely to be striped velveteen, for the printed striped velveteens make up handsomely in two-piece models. Then, too, such an excellent range of colors is available such as brown with rust, wine with rose beige, bright navy with lighter blues, dark green with yellow and so on and so on. Another feature about the two-piece models made of striped velveteen is the clever and varied manipulation of the stripes. If they run horizontal about the skirt they are apt to change into the vertical for the blouse and vice versa. Bias effects, too, are introduced with telling effect.

So much for sports velvet stripes. However, when the designing one selects a striped velvet for the dressy afternoon frock, it must be daintily sheer to qualify as a suitable medium. Sheer velvet stripes on a transparent background is the wanted kind.

A striped velvet of this description was chosen for the very attractive afternoon gown pictured herewith. This model demonstrates how gracefully sheer velvet and chiffon stripes yield to a soft styling. The fact that this velvet adopts black and white for its color scheme is significant, for this combination is holding its own with fashionists who cater to a "classy clientele."

Of formal elegance are certain velvet and metal striped materials. Handsome indeed are they in their colorings of green, brown or wine on gold, or black on silver or gold as one may choose. For the dressy costume blouse these metal and colorful velvet striped materials are ideal. A black velvet skirt topped with a black and gold striped blouse, the ensemble completed with a black velvet jacket or long coat, makes a costume superb for matinee and bridge party; also, would grace the afternoon tea-hour scene with its stunning presence.

Almost without exception the stripes are handled in horizontal fashion for the costume blouse. Any trimming other than sparkling rhinestone buttons or fancy metal ones or perhaps a jeweled buckle would be superfluous for the handsomeness of the material itself is sufficient unto itself.

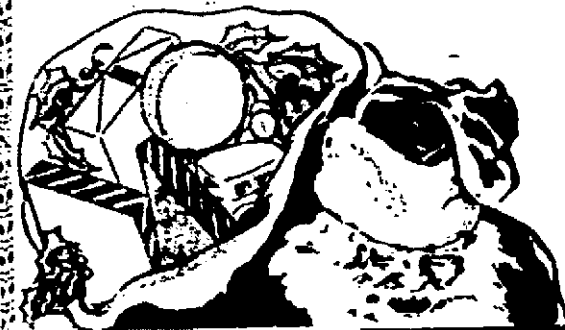

Velvet-striped weaves in monochrome colorings are also very good. That is the chiffon background and the velvet stripes are in identical color, the contrast accentuated by the dull surface of the chiffon and the luster of the velvet.

The DAIRY

CLEAN AND COOL—
MOTTO FOR MILK

The two greatest causes of high bacterial counts in milk are unclean utensils and delayed cooling, says W. E. Ayres of the New York State College of Agriculture. Even a moderately careful dairyman may have unclean utensils, for milk cans or milk pails may contain bacterial lodging places so concealed that the user fails to see them; or his method of washing may be incomplete.

To prevent giving germs a home, the cans should have no open seams or cracks. Such places retaining milk material and moisture form safe harbors for millions of bacteria; and the growth which occurs here between milkings will wash into and contaminate the next warm milk that reaches it. All such pockets should be thoroughly closed with solder.

Immediately after using, milk utensils should be rinsed in cool or lukewarm water, and then thoroughly washed in a solution of washing powder and hot water, using sufficient powder to readily dissolve any greasy material. A brush cleans more effectively than a cloth, and permits using hotter water.

When washed, the utensils should be rinsed and scalded with boiling water and put in a clean airy place where they will drain and dry quickly. It is better not to wipe them, for the wiping cloth may be a source of contamination.

The strainer pad, which serves for one milking only, is superior to the strainer cloth, which often forms a place for germs to gather. If the strainer cloth must be used, it should be thoroughly washed and rapidly dried immediately after each use.

Milk cans are so rapidly passed through the washer at the milk plant that often they are neither clean nor dry when returned to the owner. Such cans should be well rinsed as soon as they reach the farm and inverted on racks at an angle which will permit them to drain and dry. A foul can may add great numbers of bacteria to the milk.

Delayed cooling is one of the major causes of high bacterial counts. For the average dairyman a simple, well-insulated tank of ice water deep enough for the water to reach the necks of the cans, is most satisfactory. If the can is set in the water as the first milk is strained in, and the milk is stirred as each succeeding pailful is added, little difficulty should be experienced in meeting the cooling requirements of city ordinances or of state codes. Any temperature above 50 degrees Fahrenheit allows bacteria to increase. Enough ice should be used so that large pieces are always present in the tank. Little if any more ice is needed to keep the tank cold than to cool it after the temperature has been permitted to rise. Proper insulation and a good cover, of course, aid in maintaining low temperature, and these are paid for by the saving in ice.

Analysis of more than 100,000 yearly individual records from cows on test in dairy herd improvement associations indicates that, on the average, cows that produced 100 pounds of butterfat a year returned $14 each over cost of feed; those that produced 200 pounds, $34 over cost of feed; 300 pounds, $86; 400 pounds, $138, and 500-pound cows returned $173 over cost of feed. Thus the man milking a 500-pound producer would have more return than if he milked a dozen 100-pound cows, and this would take no account of the added labor of milking and caring for the larger herd or of the much greater expense of providing stable room for a herd instead of a single animal. The figures from returns are based on farm prices from all parts of the country, including whole-milk districts.

Long-Tested Herds Are Always Most Profitable

The dairyman who is enrolled in a cow-testing association profits most after three years of testing, according to J. H. Brock of the University of Illinois. Farmers who have had their herds tested for three years made $25.56 more above feed costs on each cow in their herds than those with only a one-year check on their animals.

Even farmers whose herds had been tested for two years pocketed $10.61 more per cow above feed costs than those whose cows had been tested only one year. Mr. Brock advises consistent testing and says that no herd is too small to be entered in a herd improvement association.

Feeding Young Stock

Young dairy stock coming in off of pasture in the fall should be provided an open shed for shelter and given all the roughage they will eat. A little grain may be fed also to get as much growth as possible on a heifer before she has her first calf. The roughage may be all the alfalfa hay they will eat, a combination of some hay with about 15 pounds of silage per head, some alfalfa and some prairie hay, or shredded corn fodder and alfalfa hay.

Certain Legumes Improve Soils

Cowpeas and Soy Beans as Effective Fertilizer as Manure.

Anyone having a field which he is not going to use for producing a market crop this year might find it a good plan to improve the soil by sowing cowpeas or soy beans, suggests H. H. Cox, specialist in farm crops at the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, New Brunswick. It is cheaper to grow these crops than to use ten tons of manure to the acre, and they are considered as being practically as effective as this amount of manure. The right kind of fertilizer is used on the market crops of the following year.

Soy beans are cheaper than cowpeas by about 50 or 75 cents a bushel. Soy beans are, therefore, a better crop to use for this purpose. In the case of soy beans it is desirable to inoculate if the field has never raised them before. One may buy commercial inoculants or he may use the "seed and soil" method. This method consists in mixing a bushel of slightly moistened seed with a quart of soil taken from a field which has raised soy beans successfully in recent years.

Drill or Broadcast.

Soy beans or cowpeas should be drilled, but if a drill is not available, broadcasting by hand and harrowing will do. Five pecks to the acre drilled or six pecks broadcast by hand is a good rate of seeding. An application of a complete fertilizer high in phosphoric acid and potash and low in nitrogen may well be made at the rate of 200 to 400 pounds per acre. When the crop is beginning to mature, plow it under or disk it in and sow rye or rye and vetch as a winter crop. A surprising improvement in the fertility of the field will result.

Labor Cost Is Big Item in Production of Milk

In large herds labor is usually the second most important item in the cost of milk production. From the keeping of cost accounts in many sections of the country the amount of labor required in caring for a cow has been found to range from 100 to 175 hours per year. Under average conditions the care of a cow for a year may be considered equivalent to about 15 days' work.

On general farms where only a few cows are kept no additional labor is hired for their care. The work is performed either by the farmer at the time of day when it does not interfere with the field operations or the cows are cared for largely by the children of the family before and after school hours. Thus the keeping of a few cows provides employment for unpaid labor, contributes a considerable proportion of the family living and adds to the farm income.

The amount of labor expended upon several factors, among which the size of the herd, convenience of barn and milk house, distance from market, and cleanliness of milk produced, are important.

Allowing cream to become real sour before delivering it to the creamery houses lowers the grade of butter made from the cream and makes the taking of an accurate sample for determining the butterfat content of the cream more difficult.

Cream is not pure butterfat. It contains moisture even when the test runs high. When the cream is exposed to a temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit or above, some of this moisture evaporates. This lessens the weight and volume of the original sample of cream. It does not increase the original amount of butterfat which was in the container. When a can is filled with cream which has thus parted with some of the water, it naturally brings a larger income than a similar amount kept at lower temperatures.

Allowing the cream to become real sour may induce more variation in test than if it is cooled after each separation before adding to other cream. There is nothing to be gained from selling very sour cream.—G. A. Williams, Purdue university.

Agricultural Hints

Most wheat growers who use commercial fertilizers commonly drill the fertilizer directly with the wheat.

Calves are like human babies. Some are so husky no abuse could kill them, while others must be handled like soft-shelled eggs.

A good time to lime the soil that needs it is when preparing for the corn crop. Plow down the clover and before disking spread the lime.

An eight-year-old Holstein cow at a farm near Petersburg, Ont., established a record by producing 19,000 pounds of milk and 819 pounds of butterfat in 365 days.

Where alfalfa has winter-killed soy beans can be grown as a substitute for the year, say authorities at the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment station. Soy beans increase butterfat in the milk.

Soy beans are an excellent hay substitute when clover or alfalfa fails. Besides, soy beans are easily grown.

The length of time required for milk to sour is a good measure of the cleanliness of the milk, the temperature being constant.

Feed all the roughage, including a juicy feed such as silage or roots and a legume hay (alfalfa, clover, soy bean, etc.) that the cow will eat.

Sell Cream to Creamery Before It Is Real Sour

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS MAKING GALLANT FIGHT

Antibes, France, Dec. 15 (AP).—While latest reports from the bedside of the Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia, who is making a gallant fight against pneumonia, mentioned a slight improvement today, it was feared that this was only temporary, because of the great age of the patient. The Grand Duke is 72.

Nicholas was in poor health when he arrived on the Riviera a month ago and it is understood that this led to a report that he has been forced to relinquish leadership of the Russian Czarists. Nicholas answered the report by saying that he would continue to head the anti-Soviet party until he died.

Urges Changes In Traffic Laws

The Ulster County Automobile Club, through its president, LaMonte Stimpkins, announced that it will cooperate with the New York State Automobile Association and other state agencies in making suggestions to the Legislature when it meets in January, for the revision of the General Highway Traffic Law relating to motor vehicles. The public is asked to cooperate.

The Ulster County Automobile Club is represented through the state association on a committee that is now meeting twice a week at Albany to study this situation and draft the proposed revisions. Not only the New York State Automobile Association, but the Mayors' Conference of the state of New York, the Motor Vehicle Bureau, State Tax Department, State Police, State Police Chiefs' Association and Highway Department are working together on this problem.

The present object of the committee is to eliminate obsolete provisions of the law and revise it so that it will more adequately cover present day motoring conditions and bring about a greater degree of safety on our highways. Other recommendations of this committee will be made for the purpose of simplifying the law so that it will be easier for the average man to understand.

In view of this important work being done by the automobile clubs and other organizations, the public is requested to contribute ideas for further improvement of the law. Readers of The Freeman should send to Secretary B. Suskind of the Ulster County Automobile Club any ideas they may have which will help this work along.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

GIVE STRAWBERRY BED GOOD MULCH

Strawberry beds should be mulched with straw, leaves, shredded corn fodder or other fairly fine material after the ground freezes. Whatever mulching material is used, it should be as free from weed seeds as possible, otherwise the strawberry bed will become foul, according to the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., which also gives suggestions for late fall care of grapes and bush fruits.

Strawberry mulch should be applied evenly over the ground to the depth of two or three inches. With straw, this usually requires two or three tons to an acre. In the spring after the plants start to grow, the mulch should be raised with a fork in spots where it is too thick for the plants to grow through.

The college points out that most growers find that a strawberry mulch pays because fields so treated frequently yield 400 to 500 quarts more to the acre than those not mulched.

With raspberries and blackberries, the canes that have not been removed should be cut and burned. In the northern part of the state in sections where temperatures commonly reach 30 degrees or more below zero, raspberries, blackberries and tender varieties of grapes need winter protection. This may be provided by "laying down" the canes before the ground freezes and covering them with earth. Straw may be put over the canes first and this held down with earth.

Currants and gooseberries are hardy and need no winter protection.

Ways of Bracing Weak Trees Are Suggested

Methods of bracing weak trees are suggested by the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. Braces should be placed four feet or more above the weak crotch in order to be effective, and this may be done any day in the year before the tree comes into heavy bearing.

Three methods are illustrated. In two methods the materials used are No. 9 galvanized wire or small wire cable, wood screws, three-eighths, one-half, or five-eighths inch, with eyes, preferably welded. By one method the screws or bolts are fastened into the main branches of the trees, then wire is fastened to these and stretched directly between the branches. In another the wires are fastened with screws or bolts to the main limbs as before but are all fastened to a heavy harness ring in the center, held in place by the wires.

The third method illustrates the use of natural braces. Watersprout growths are intertwined at the prescribed distance above the crotch. As the trees grow these remaining intertwined, form natural grafts, and furnish a strong living brace.

The college says the cost of any of these methods is small as compared with the value of a bearing tree.

Horticultural Notes

Too many farm orchards are left to grow and bear as they will, with no pruning.

Scale insects infest apples, peaches, pears, plums, cherries, gooseberries, currants, raspberries, blackberries, roses, lilacs, and many shade trees and ornamental shrubs.

In thinning out a neglected tree numerous small cuts made throughout the top will give much better results than the removal of large branches leaving large open spaces.

Commercial fruit growers are inclined to plant too many varieties in their orchards. Three or four varieties of winter apples are enough, two varieties of cherries will answer.

A fairly safe rule to follow in pruning is to make as few large cuts as possible. If the tree has been properly pruned from planting, large cuts will be necessary only in unusual cases.

Scale insects cannot be killed by poisons which will enter their breathing pores, as the waxy scale over the insects is ample protection against such insecticides. Hence they must be smothered.

Missing vines in a vineyard can be replaced by carrying a cane from an adjoining vine to the vacant spot and layering it there. A section of the cane should be buried and left attached to the parent vine for one or two years.

Strawberries should be covered with a light coat of straw. This will prevent winter killing of the plants. With grass in a suitable and cheap material to use for this purpose. Any coarse grass is good, however.

Midwinter is the time to choose and order fruit plants for early spring planting. In general, such order should call for only old, tried varieties. Very few of the new varieties which are offered for sale at high prices prove to be worthy of a place in the orchard or garden.

By Appointment Only.

WOMEN JOIN THE POLICE IN CLOSING SALOONS

Kansas City, Dec. 18 (AP).—Comely and daring women volunteers have joined the police here in closing saloons, taking up the work where Mrs. Maud Wilson, modern Carrie Nation, left off last week after wrecking a saloon with a hatchet.

Adopting a course more nearly within the law, the women dry crusaders, working with plain clothes officers, have purchased liquor at a half dozen saloons and aided in gathering evidence to substantiate injunction cases.

Sergeant Elmer E. Duncan, head of the police raiding squad, has revealed that five young women, some of whom are said to be socially prominent, already have become active in the dry crusade, and that 15 more volunteers were in readiness to take up the work if the identity of the present workers is discovered by bartenders.

"Just give them the strength," the sergeant said, "to keep on taking their liquor straight, and we'll clean up this town."

"Taking their liquor straight" is indeed the hardest part of the self-imposed task, one of the assistant raiders today indicated. Her name, like those of the others, was not revealed.

Duncan explained that the ruse evidently was suspected at 65 places visited, because the women could not buy liquor there. The sergeant has offered the women every protection against publicity and reprisals by arranging that their identity be kept secret. They will not be called to appear in court, their purchases being used as the basis for search warrants and injunction cases.

Meanwhile the far-reaching effects of Mrs. Wilson's startling descent upon the saloon where she asserted liquor had been served her husband and daughter continued to be felt. A county grand jury investigation of the liquor situation here got under way yesterday morning but was halted suddenly before nightfall when Prosecutor James R. Page began an investigation of reported intimidation of witnesses. A witness reported to Page that he had been threatened with death if he went before the inquisitorial board.

The jury investigation was to be resumed today. Judge Brown Harris, in his charge, ordered the grand jury "dig in" to the reported bad liquor situation here, and follow out every possible clue of liquor dealing.
